GEORGE ARLISS IN PAGANINI Coming to the Davis Theatre Friday Evening.

When, some fifteen years ago, George Arliss boarded a liner at Liverpool on his first visit to this country, it was as leading man for Mrs. Patrick Campbell. Like most Englishmen he was glad to make a trip to this side for the novelty it might afford, and for the new theatrical experience. But beyond this he had no marrest in the country and no idea of remaining in America beyond the limited pariod of his five months' contract. However, within a month or two of his arrival he not only acquired. liking for the country as a personal matter, but also began to attract the attention of American managers by reason of the excellence of his stage reason of the excellence of his stage work. In particular he interested David Belasco who offered him a further contract when his agreement with hirs Campbell should expire. After a short return to his native Engiand Mr. Arilas took up his contract with Mr. Belasco, and after appearing as leading man with Mrs. Fiske for several seasons in which he originated such clever roles as Lord Steyne in Becky Sharp and Zakuri in The Darling of the Gods, he starred in The ing of the Gods, he starred in The Devil and later in Septimus. Then followed his five years' success in Disfollowed his five years' success in Discrete. This season the distinguished actor appears in a new play by Edward Knoblauch, entitled Paganini, in which Mr. Arliss has made another ton, D. C., and nearby places with the college ball team during his vatremendous success, and in which he will be seen at the Davis theatre Friday evening, coming direct from a remarkable record-breaking engagement at the Hollis Street and Colonial theatres, Boston, that was interrupted only because of inability to find furtime for Mr. Arliss in that city, to the sudden closing of the with the character and personality of the great Italian violinist of that name, who was preeminent in Europe a hundred years ago, and of whom many strange tales are told. The character is bizarre and eccentric and is reputed to give Mr. Arliss opporties for original and novel imper-

THE COLONIAL THEATRE The Feature at The Colonial Today is All for Old Ireland.

The three-reel Lubin drama, All for Old Ireland, written and directed by Sidney Olcott, one of the greatest of all producers of Irish stories, will undoubtedly create wide interest. This is the first of a series of "made-in-reland" comedy dramas in which the Lubin company is Teatnuring Miss Valentine Grant, a charming and clevrilitile star who is particularly suitof to Irish colleen roles.

The scenes for this play were filmed along the rugged cliffs and broken shores of South Kerry and also amid she wondrous surroundings of the Gap of Dnnioe and the beautiful lakes of Killarney so famed in story and song. All for Old Ireland, is a stirring tale of the days of '89 when all

Trinity Methodist Pastor and Singers at Sheltering Arms' Service—Local Church Members Give $30 Toward Victrola and Records for India Mis-

Rev. F. W. Coleman, paster of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, was at the Sheltering Arms service Sunday afternoon. The text chosen was, For I am persuaded that neither death nor life nor prinicipalities nor powers nor things present nor things to come, nor height nor depth nor any other creature shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus, our Lord. Paul meant these words for those who know God through Christ, he said, who have the love of God. Nothing can take God's presence awap from them. Dangers and difficulties may come, but none of these things can separate the soul of these things can separate the soul from God.

God put each one of us into a cer-God put each one of us into a certain place in life, perhaps a place of hardship, God seess us there, He expects us to be loyal and we shall be loyal if we have for and trust in Him. When the fight is on, the eye of our great Leader is upon us and we shall stand firm. In all these things we shall be more than conquerors through Him who has loved us All these Him who has loved us. All these trials are as discipline to help us to a more perfect life in God.

Mrs. William Crowe and nine mem-bers of the girls choir of Trinity church made the musical part of the hour most enjoyable. Nearer, My God, to Thee, Bringing in the Sheaves and Anywhere With Jesus were some of the hymns. There was also a beautiful rendering of the anthem, I Will Praise Thy Name.

POETRY

WHILE DREAMS STAY BRIGHT. No matter what the task may be Nor if the wait be long.
We can smile on undausted,
And our hearts beat strong.
If through the dust of conflict
Or the murk of night
To cheer us on to victory
The dream stays bright!

nuiacy. AlNor the snares men set;
Nor the snares men set;
It good that we have failed of
We simil share in yet;
And neither human hatred
Nor the friend's own spite
Shall baffle or defeat us
While the dream stays bright!

But alas for human longing Since the hope men share
Is bordered all too closely
By the realm despair!
And the present's face is gloomy
And the future's face is gromy
As we tarry empty-handed
While the dream gets dim.
—Arthur Goodenough, in Springhed
(Mass.) Republican.

I guess I'm watching for the Spring-I don't want to do anything But set beside a sunny wall An' listen for the first fur call Of the fieldlark! I otto plow, But I don't want to do it now; I want to go out 'bout a mile An' balt a hook an' fisha while.

Ambition was not made for me;
A nook beside a wayside tree
Beside a crizk, and with a pole,
And a fish lurking in the hole.
Fill be a happy, happy man,
Because the springtime has began.
I can be happy in the Spring
If I don't even ketch a thing!

—J. M. Lewis, in Houston Post.
